

Don't Just Believe

Nor hell or heaven should we seek
For it's just impermanent
Reflect a moment you shall find
That all things aren't permanent

For even the Greatest have to die
Where there's birth, there must be death
Reflect a moment and you'll find
This truth that grips all life

Chorus:

For endless age the Dhamma shine
Even though there're Buddhas here or not
And thought the Buddha might be gone
Still He shines ever bright in those who see

Do you remember when you're one?
All the things that took place then
And just because you can't recall
Doesn't mean, rebirth there's none

This Dharma World is yours to find
Come and see, don't just believe
The answer's within not without
Come and see, don't just believe
Come and see, don't just believe
